PROGRAM:

This week's program was presented by Mike Group, the executive director of the Fort Smith chapter of the American Red Cross. Mike gave us a run down of "emergency preparedness"; and what he calls "Red Cross Ready". Getting ready is actually a relatively simple process and involves only three steps: Build a kit, make a plan and be informed. The most difficult of steps is building a kit. It should contain enough supplies for each member of your family (including pets) for three days. Of course, no kit would be complete without duct tape and plastic sheeting. Some cash and coins and personal hygiene supplies are a must. Most importantly, include your family's important papers to use after the disaster. Planning is critical in that it gives every one in the family an evacuation plan and a place to meet. Be informed and stay informed. Know what's going on around you.

HUMOR:

Husband's note on refrigerator door for wife:

Someone from the Gyna Colleges called.

They said the Pabst beer is normal.

I didn't know you liked beer!
